

Craig Murray is Rector of the University of Dundee and an Honorary Research Fellow at the University of Lancaster School of Law.

He was born in West Runton in 1958 and gained the degree of MA (Hons) in Modern History with first class honours from the University of Dundee. He joined the British diplomatic service in 1984 and served in Nigeria, Poland and Ghana before becoming British ambassador to Uzbekistan. Craig Murray was sacked from that position in 2004 after protesting about the use by US and UK secret services of intelligence gained by torture there, as part of the "war on terror". He resigned from the diplomatic service in 2005 and published his first book, Murder in Samarkand, an immediate non-fiction best-seller.

Craig lives in Shepherds Bush with his partner, Nadira, and his two children from a previous marriage.

*Watch what you say!
They'll be calling you a radical, a liberal,
A fanatical criminal.
Won't you sign up your name?
We want to feel you're acceptable, presentable,
Respectable, a vegetable.*
